Coffey's radical GP plan

ALL GP patients in England will be offered an appointment for non-urgent needs within two weeks under new proposals.

Health Secretary Thérèse Coffey will also outline plans for patients to be able to compare surgeries.

And more GP assistants and nurses will be employed to free up valuable time.

But Professor Martin Marshall, the chairman of the Royal College of GPs, said: "It's a shame that the Health Secretary didn't talk to our members on the front-line before making her announcement."

Covid's booster for rich

COVID created nearly 50,000 new "super-rich" people globally.

Those with assets of more than £43.7million soared in 2021 by 46,000 to a record high of 218,200.

Credit Suisse experts put it down to an "explosion of wealth" in the housing and stock markets despite the pandemic.

Economics professor Anthony Shorrocks said the growth was "probably higher than any other year we have ever recorded".

There are now 2,668 billionaires globally, up from 140 in 1987, with 4.6% in the UK, according to Forbes.

Bed fee bid for holidays

TOURISTS in Wales could be slapped with a "bedroom tax" that could add £75 to the cost of a week-long family holiday.

It would apply to campers and B&B and hotel guests, as well as Welsh people touring their own country.

Suzi Davies, of the Wales Tourism Alliance, branded it a "misguided and damaging bed tax". But Rebecca Evans, Welsh minister for finance and local government, said: "We will encourage a more sustainable approach for tourism."

PEACE 'DEAL'

LIZ Truss and Joe Biden both agreed peace in Northern Ireland must be protected and preserved when they met at the UN General Assembly in New York, a Downing Street spokesman said.

The No10 source said: "The Prime Minister and President Biden both agreed that the priority must be protecting the Belfast (Good Friday) Agreement and preserving the gains of peace in Northern Ireland." The leaders sat down to talks that also covered Russia's invasion of Ukraine and the energy crisis it has caused.

Mr Biden told Ms Truss: "We are both committed to protecting the Good Friday Agreement of Northern Ireland."

He also congratulated her on becoming Prime Minister, adding: "I look forward to working closely with you. You're our closest ally in the world and there's a lot we can continue to do together."

She added the mini-Budget would "get more businesses going in the UK" and "encourage more people to go into work".

But Lib Dem leader Ed Davey said she had "probably the most right-wing Government in modern history. And it seems completely out of touch".

FELLAS are always up for a quick romp but women find it less satisfying.

What pops into men's mind most of the time between the sheets is either raunchy sex with a previous partner or "this is amazing".

And the hard truth is that most girls are not satisfied, thinking either "I'm not finished yet" or "How much longer is this going on?"

A survey of 2,000 people by affair site IllicitEncounters found men think about bonking 16 times a day on average, while women think about sex eight times a day.

Lobster key to a long life

HUMANS could one day live to 140 – just like lobsters.

Scientists are researching an enzyme that helps the crustaceans to stay sprightly.

As we get older our bodies can no longer fix themselves and damage starts to mount up.

But the “telomerase” enzyme in a lot of the lobsters’ cells stops this.

Our bodies only have active telomerase in certain cells, like stem cells, which can keep renewing themselves over long periods – but other cells have a much shorter lifespan.

Boffins reckon the key to slowing down the biological clock is increasing the number of telomerase cells in our bodies.

But we might have to wait some time to live so long as they also found a link between the enzyme and cancer.

Dr Lindsay Wu, head of the University of New South Wales, Australia, said: “Telomerase is not normally expressed in most adult cells but it’s often ‘turned on’ in cancer cells, helping maintain the immortality of cancer.”

TRAGIC: Olivia’s murder shocked nation

Reward’s a record for Crimestoppers

A RECORD £200,000 reward has been offered to find Olivia Pratt-Korbel’s killer.

The huge sum for information that leads to convictions is the biggest in Crimestoppers history.

The nine-year-old was shot on August 22 when a gunman chased a man into her home in Dovecot, Liverpool, and opened fire, hitting Olivia’s mum and then her.

Last week, Crimestoppers founder Lord Ashcroft offered £50,000 – which he has now doubled to match a £100,000 donation from a new private donor. Lord Ashcroft said: “This case has been incredibly shocking, not just for those who are directly affected, but also for Liverpool and the nation as a whole.”

“I am delighted Crimestoppers can now offer a record £200,000 for information to catch Olivia’s killer. We need every effort to find those involved in this appalling killing.”

Crimestoppers’ Mark Hallas said: “If you know who killed Olivia, please search your conscience and ask yourself, if Olivia was your daughter, relative or friend, what would you want to happen?

■ by LEIGH McMANUS

“I think you know the answer would be to see justice – justice for Olivia, her family and all those who are heartbroken after this tragedy.”

Nine arrests have been made so far, but there has been no significant breakthrough.

British fighters on way home

FIVE British nationals held by Russian-backed forces are being returned to their families.

The news was confirmed by Liz Truss in a tweet on her visit to New York for a UN summit where world leaders are discussing Ukraine.

One of the Brits was named by his MP Robert Jenrick as Aiden Aslin, 28, from Newark, Notts.

He is heading back to the UK via Saudi Arabia.

Ms Truss said: "Hugely welcome news that five British nationals held by Russian-backed proxies in eastern Ukraine are being safely returned, ending months of uncertainty and suffering for them and their families."

The Prime Minister thanked Ukrainian president Volodymyr Zelenskyy "for his efforts to secure the release of detainees and Saudi Arabia for their assistance."

"Russia must end the ruthless exploitation of prisoners of war and civilian detainees for political ends," Ms Truss added.

Since the invasion earlier this year, a number of British nationals have been captured.

Mad Vlad added: "Those who try to blackmail us with nuclear weapons should know that the prevailing winds can turn in their direction." The tyrant falsely claimed he was responding to threats from unnamed Nato officials "about the possibility of using weapons of mass destruction - nuclear weapons - against Russia".

In response to his rant, British Foreign Office minister Gillian Keegan said: "It's a serious threat - it's one he's made before and one he may make again. We would urge calm at this moment. We need to be very clear on

It was Putin's first televised address since the invasion on February 24. He also announced a desperate call-up of army reservists.

Youngsters across Russia responded by taking to the streets in protest and preparing to flee the country to avoid potential conscription. Hundreds were reportedly arrested by police.

Ukrainian MP Kira Rudik tweeted: "Right after Putin's address Russians bought out all the plane tickets to Istanbul and Yerevan [the capital of Armenia]."

"You asked what it would take for Russians to rebel. Well, mobilisation. I'm sure we'll see street protests soon."

UK Defence Secretary Ben Wallace said Putin's actions were an admission that his plan was failing.

GIANT: The planet

Jupiter in close fly-past

JUPITER will be clearly visible on Monday as it makes its closest approach to Earth for 59 years.

The planet will come within 367million miles of Earth compared to the 600m miles away it is at its most distant.

Visibility will be particularly striking as it will be in opposition – meaning that when the Sun is setting in the west, it will be rising in the eastern sky.

US astrophysicist Adam Kobelski said: “Outside of the Moon, it should be one of the (if not the) brightest objects in the night sky.”

The last time gas-giant planet Jupiter was this close to Earth was in 1963.

King's workers jobs hit

ROYAL staff who provided personal services to the Queen have been told their jobs will be affected under King Charles III.

A letter has been sent to a number of employees saying that consultations will be held.

The letter says: “It is anticipated that only a very small minority of employees who provided personal services to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth will see their posts affected by Her Majesty's death.”

Last week up to 100 employees at the King's former residence, Clarence House, were notified they could lose their jobs.

He has offered to swear to the truth of this statement on oath on the Bible if needed, but I saw no point in asking him to do this.

I felt rather dizzy, as though I had received a near knockout blow on the point of the chin, but of course there was no physical hurt of any sort, merely a feeling of dizziness.

I picked up my bicycle, mounted it and rode straight on to Broadlands where I met Heath standing by the garage.

I was feeling very shaky and felt I must regain my confidence by discussing what I had seen. I said to him: “Look, Ron, have you known me long enough to know that I am sane and sober at this hour of the morning?” He laughed and made some remark like, “Well, of course.” Then I told him what I had seen.

Heath and I went back along the road where I showed him the tracks of my bicycle. I then went back to work, where I saw my foreman, Mr. Hudson, and told him what I had seen.

Frederick W. Briggs

Prince Philip's secret investigation into UFOs

EXCLUSIVE

by JERRY LAWTON

THE Queen's death could trigger the release of the Royal X-Files.

Alien buffs say ministers must make public her late husband the Duke of Edinburgh's near 70-year research into UFO sightings in Britain.

He was obsessed with space and developed a “fascination” for aliens after a bricklayer reported a close encounter at the home of Lord Louis Mountbatten – Philip's uncle – in 1955.

Fred Briggs claimed he was knocked off his bike by a mystery force as he saw a figure emerge from a spacecraft.

The late Lord Mountbatten – the UK's former chief of defence staff – told Philip about the incident at his Broadlands estate in Hampshire.

The royal spent much of the rest of his life probing ETs, but experts claim it was hushed up as it would have “caused a sensation”. Now they say there are almost certain to be calls to open up the files. Ex-Ministry Of Defence official Nick Pope, who manned the Government's UFO desk from 1991 to 1994, said Philip and his ex-RAF associate Sir Peter Horsley “quietly” investigated alien sightings “over the years”. He said the royal “kept an eye on developments, subscribed to UFO magazines and newsletters and had witnesses interviewed”.

OUT THERE: Philip, Broadlands, Queen and Mountbatten

“This is highly sensitive,” he added. “Here you have the Queen's husband investigating UFOs. Had the news got out it would have caused a sensation.”

Nick told US-based History TV Philip's interest was sparked by the incident on his uncle's land. He said

Briggs claimed he saw a “huge” ship before “a humanoid figure” emerged and he was knocked from his bike

Briggs reported the encounter to Lord Mountbatten who ordered him to make a witness statement and wrote up his own report of the incident, above.

Historian Richard Dolan said Lord Mountbatten “talked extensively to Prince Philip about this”, adding: “You have to assume Queen Elizabeth knew.”

Investigative journalist Linda Moulton Howe said Philip – assisted by his uncle – could have compiled research containing almost everything the UK Government knew about UFOs dating back seven decades.

His files stayed secret following his death, aged 99, in April 2021. Two months later Brit defence chiefs refused to release extraterrestrial info.

Baroness Annabel Goldie was asked if the UK Government would reveal details of its X-Files like the Americans.

She said the MoD holds “no reports on unidentified aerial phenomena”.

DAILY STAR Says

Vlad just a bully boy

MAD Vlad Putin is desperate to be heard.

Every time the news agenda strays away from the crackpot Russian leader he brings out another angry video to make sure he's back in the headlines.

Just lately things haven't been going too well for Vlad.

Back in February he thought he would walk into Ukraine and take the country within a few days.

Seven months later and his invasion plans – and his army – lie in tatters.

Many on the ground say Ukraine is winning this war and regaining most of its lost land.

As a result Vlad has thrown his toys out of his pram and wants to force Russian civilians to sign up to fight.

He insists HE is the one under attack and has vowed to retaliate against "The West" by "all means necessary".

Obviously he shouldn't be ignored.

And what he is saying is certainly designed to frighten people.

But Vlad is your classic bully running scared.

World leaders need to stand firm now and continue to support Ukraine.

If we show any weakness he will just become even more aggressive.

Secrets of Phil's files

NOW we're not sure Prince Philip would have been the best person to greet little green men from another planet.

He had a real talent for putting his foot in it.

But it is amazing to hear about his interest in alien life and unexplained phenomena in our skies.

The late Duke of Edinburgh was famously obsessed with the first moon landings.

And it turns out he even commissioned investigations into alleged close encounters and left behind a secret vault of Royal X-Files when he died.

Now ET investigators are demanding they are opened up.

God knows what they've got in them.

But one thing's for certain, we'd all be fascinated.

DALE OF A TIME AT 50 YEARS

★ THE cast of Emmerdale pose together as they get set to mark the soap's 50th birthday next month in a special way.

The soap launched on ITV on October 16, 1972. And on Sunday, October 16 this year, bosses will air an hour-long episode to mark the five-decade anniversary.

★ Cast members including Jeff Hordley (Cain Dingle), Chris Chittell (Eric Pollard), Mark Charnock (Marlon Dingle) and Lisa Riley (Mandy Dingle) were among those who gathered for the group shot outside The Woolpack pub. The anniversary special promises to be a belter as a storm hits the village and puts some characters in peril.

★ Three familiar faces – Danny Miller, Amy Walsh and Elizabeth Estensen – are also set to return.

Maisie eyes up Square

MAISIE Smith has teased a potential EastEnders return after quitting as Tiffany Butcher last year.

The Strictly star, 21, left Albert Square in December 2021, before briefly reprising the role for an episode in March as part of co-star Keegan Baker's exit.

She admitted she could "reunite" with her on-screen family as the BBC soap makers would "welcome" her back.

Maisie said: "I said if they ever need me, just call me. That's what is nice about EastEnders. You always have a place there."

EXPERTS are warning about the dangers of cold water swimming.

Enthusiasts love the physical and mental health benefits, but experts say folk are taking the plunge without realising the potentially lethal effects.

The number of open-water swimming deaths in the UK jumped from 34 to 61 between 2018 and 2021.

Study author Mike Tipton, of the University of Portsmouth, said: "As a tropical animal, going into cold water is a really significant stress."

FREEZE: Cold weather snap

Winter chills ready to bite this Monday

■ by DAVID FLETT
BRITAIN could see its first real snow of winter on Monday as temperatures plummet.

And weathermen are warning the mercury could struggle to get much above freezing.

WX Charts predict 1cm of snow will fall in the Highlands on Monday and Tuesday as a bitter front sweeps in.

The cold snap will also hit the south, bringing thermometers crashing to 7C in Essex, Kent and Cambridgeshire.

The Met Office's Stephen Dixon said: "Early next week, temperatures as low as 3C are most likely in the far north and in the early hours of the morning."

"During the day, temperatures next week are likely to be cooler than average for most."

But warmer conditions will arrive by the end of the week with highs of 15C in the south of England. Patches of snow were reported on Ben Macdui and Braeriach in Scotland earlier this week.

QUEUEGATE TAKES A TOLL ON HOLLY!

'QUIET': Holly yesterday

HOLLY Willoughby had fans worried when she hosted This Morning puffy-eyed after the "queuegate" row.

The 41-year-old and co-presenter Phillip Schofield, 60, have faced a public backlash over accusations they jumped the line to see the Queen's coffin lying in state.

But viewers of yesterday's ITV show said it looked like Holly had been "up all night crying".

It came as a petition to get the pair "axed from TV" amassed more than 40,000 signatures.

But Holly's pal Piers Morgan said she was "absolutely distraught" at the "overblown" reaction and said the "public flogging" should stop.

He added: "Of course they shouldn't be fired, it's ridiculous." Holly has defended their actions on This Morning, insisting: "We would never jump the queue."

ITV said they were there "in a professional capacity".

Liam's finding brandy handy

LIAM GALLAGHER reckons the secret to his longevity is getting "battered" on half a bottle of brandy before he hits the stage. The Oasis legend turned 50 yesterday and admits he needs a few drinks to keep his cartoon wild man of rock persona going. Liam revealed: "I've been walloping the brandy with honey and hot water. It's half a bottle of brandy before I go on. "I've been getting a bit battered on stage recently. Not battered, just... I wouldn't say nerves. But I think as you get older, you're not as cocksure. So I've been having a brandy just to chill me out a bit. "And as you get on there, about the seventh song or the sixth song, you think, 'Yeah, this is actually all right this, man. I'll have another one'. By the time you've done your 20th song, you've done a bottle!" 50 is normally a time for reflection but Liam doesn't think he will ever slow down. He told Matt Wilkinson on Apple Music 1: "The main thing for me is, obviously I smoke and I drink and I get involved, unlike some rock stars. And I've been doing that since I was 14, 15. I might have had six months off a couple of years go for a breather, but I'm normally drinking and smoking and whatever. "So my voice will change, and it will change over years anyway. But it's all about in there. "It's like, soon as that mic opens, soon as that mic's there and you go to put your stamp on it, if you feel it there." Liam has recorded an exclusive birthday Home Session for Apple Music, playing a cover of John Lennon's I Don't Wanna Be A Soldier Mama, I Don't Wanna Die. DIGGING THE

DANCING GENE

■ by STEVE HUGHES

THE ability to dance might lie in your genes.

The first large-scale study into how musical rhythm relates to genetics, found 69 genetic variants that relate to the ability to move in time with a beat.

The study found that 16% of anyone's flair on the dance floor can be attributed to hereditary genes.

So if your dad's a bad dancer, you are more likely to be too.

And whether or not we

Blame lack of boogie skills on mum and dad have rhythm doesn't depend on musical training or the type of music we're listening to, according to the researchers from the Vanderbilt Genetics Institute in Nashville, US. Weirdly the study found those who think of themselves as "evening people" are more able to tap in time to a beat.

The study's lead author, Dr Reyna Gordon, said: "Tapping, clapping and dancing in synchrony with the beat of music is at the core of our human musicality."

Co-author Lea Davis, said: "This is novel groundwork toward understanding the biology underlying how musicality relates to other health traits."

Researcher Dr David Hinds added: "These findings represent a leap forward for scientific understanding of the links between genetics and musicality."

"I spent many a happy evening with him, after which he'd take me to a nearby cafe for a full English at midnight."

"Not exactly a wise combination after a skinful, but my motto has always been, 'If you're going to be sick, be really sick'."

"On one occasion, we were joined by Dale's best mate, Cilla Black. Surprise, surprise all right."

"This caused quite a furore in the little cafe. The Scouse chanteuse, the Brummie drag artist and the Home Counties queen with the orange face."

"All eating sausages with brown sauce in the middle of the night. Happy days."

Cilla was 72 when she died at her Spanish holiday home in 2015, while telly favourite Dale died, aged 62 three years later.

All kids want for Christmas is a dinosaur

THE race is on to track down this year's must-have presents – 100 days before Christmas.

And a £10 dinosaur bath toy, inset, is tipped to be the hottest gift.

Argos has unveiled 15 toys it expects to be on children's lists – including classics like Barbie, Hot Wheels, and Lego.

With many families on a tight budget, Chad Valley's Dinosaur Waterfall Bath Toy is expected to be a bestseller.

Other cheaper offerings such as the Paw Patrol Big Truck Pups, 12" plush Squishmallow, and the NERF Elite 2.0 Ranger PD-5 Blaster, which all cost £18, are also likely to be big sellers this year.

Fay Williams, from Argos, said: "This year's top toy list is a great mixture of classic and much-loved toys such as Lego as well as newer brands like Squishmallows.

"It's clear digital entertainment and some of the biggest and most loved film and TV franchises continue to have a massive influence on the most in-demand toys.

"It's great to see classic franchises like Harry Potter, Transformers and Pokémon continue to prove popular alongside newer ones."

Footballer ace is caught on camera before the flight. Top right, the plane

by BRENDAN McFADDEN
FOOTBALLER Emiliano Sala said a doomed plane "looks like it's falling apart" before he and the pilot died when it crashed into the English Channel.

He sent the voice note to pals shortly before take-off, adding he was "scared".

Pilot David Ibbotson also voiced fears over the 35-year-old Piper Malibu single-engine plane ahead of the journey from France to Wales in January 2019 - after the striker, 28, signed for Cardiff City from French club Nantes.

Mr Ibbotson, 59, who didn't have a licence to carry paying passengers, heard a "bang" as he crossed the Channel to collect the ace.

He called the aircraft "dodgy" and added: "Tomorrow I'll be wearing the life jacket, that's for sure."

The pilot said he had occasionally seen a low mist "throughout the airframe" and noticed its left brake pedal wasn't working.

Video has also emerged of the pair in Nantes airport security - the last time they were seen alive.

Sala's body was recovered but the pilot has never been found.

BIG BELLY BRITS

85% officially fat in 40 years

■ by AARON TINNEY

NEARLY 85% of Brits will be officially fat by 2060 – plunging the NHS deeper into crisis.

The explosion in numbers of those people classed as overweight or clinically obese will pile a bill of at least £142billion on to the already struggling NHS.

Tam Fry, from the National Obesity Forum, which is making the grim prediction, said: "The Government has done nothing serious to stem obesity. The result is that we are in the grip of an obesity emergency."

He described the forecast figure as "eye-watering and appalling", adding: "Obesity is already putting huge pressure on the NHS."

"I would be really concerned if I was a future prime minister as there is a risk the rising cost of obesity could bankrupt the NHS."

Researchers from the World Obesity Federation and analysts RTI International analysed data from 161 countries for a study.

It forecasts 84.8% of UK adults will be overweight or obese by 2060 – up from 60.7% currently.

The estimated cost of treating today's obesity crisis is £52.9bn, equal to 2.1% of national income.

A bill of £142.5bn by 2060 would represent 2.4%

HEAVY: Pile on pounds of the cash. Obesity is linked to heart disease, diabetes, strokes and cancer.

Britain is expected to rank 12th on the global obesity league table by 2060, the study adds.

New PM Liz Truss says she opposes "nanny state" interventions to promote healthier lifestyles.

Musk's hot bot dream

ELON Musk is set to unveil the humanoid robot he hopes will invade millions of homes around the globe.

The Tesla tycoon wants his Optimus android to take over jobs in his car factories. But he also wants it used in homes to cook dinner, mow the lawn and care for the elderly.

The Tesla bot will be unveiled at an AI event a week tomorrow in California.

But Nancy Cooke, a professor at Arizona State University, said the robot will have to perform "multiple, unscripted actions" to really impress people.

She said: "If he just gets the robot to walk around... that's not that impressive."

Scariest film by Smiles

MOVIE fans are being scared senseless by a trailer for a new horror film.

Smile follows a doctor named Rose Cotter, who is haunted by a figure constantly grinning at her.

And the two-minute promo has caused a stir online, with fans saying how "alarming" and "troubled" the flick looks.

One terrified person said: "I just threw my phone across the room. WHAT WAS THAT?"

A second added: "Nothing creepier than ppl smiling for no reason."

Another said: "I'm sorry this film looks like it's the scariest." Smile is released on September 30.

Fexting is made official

FEXTING, barkitecture and ghost colleague are set to be added to the Cambridge Dictionary.

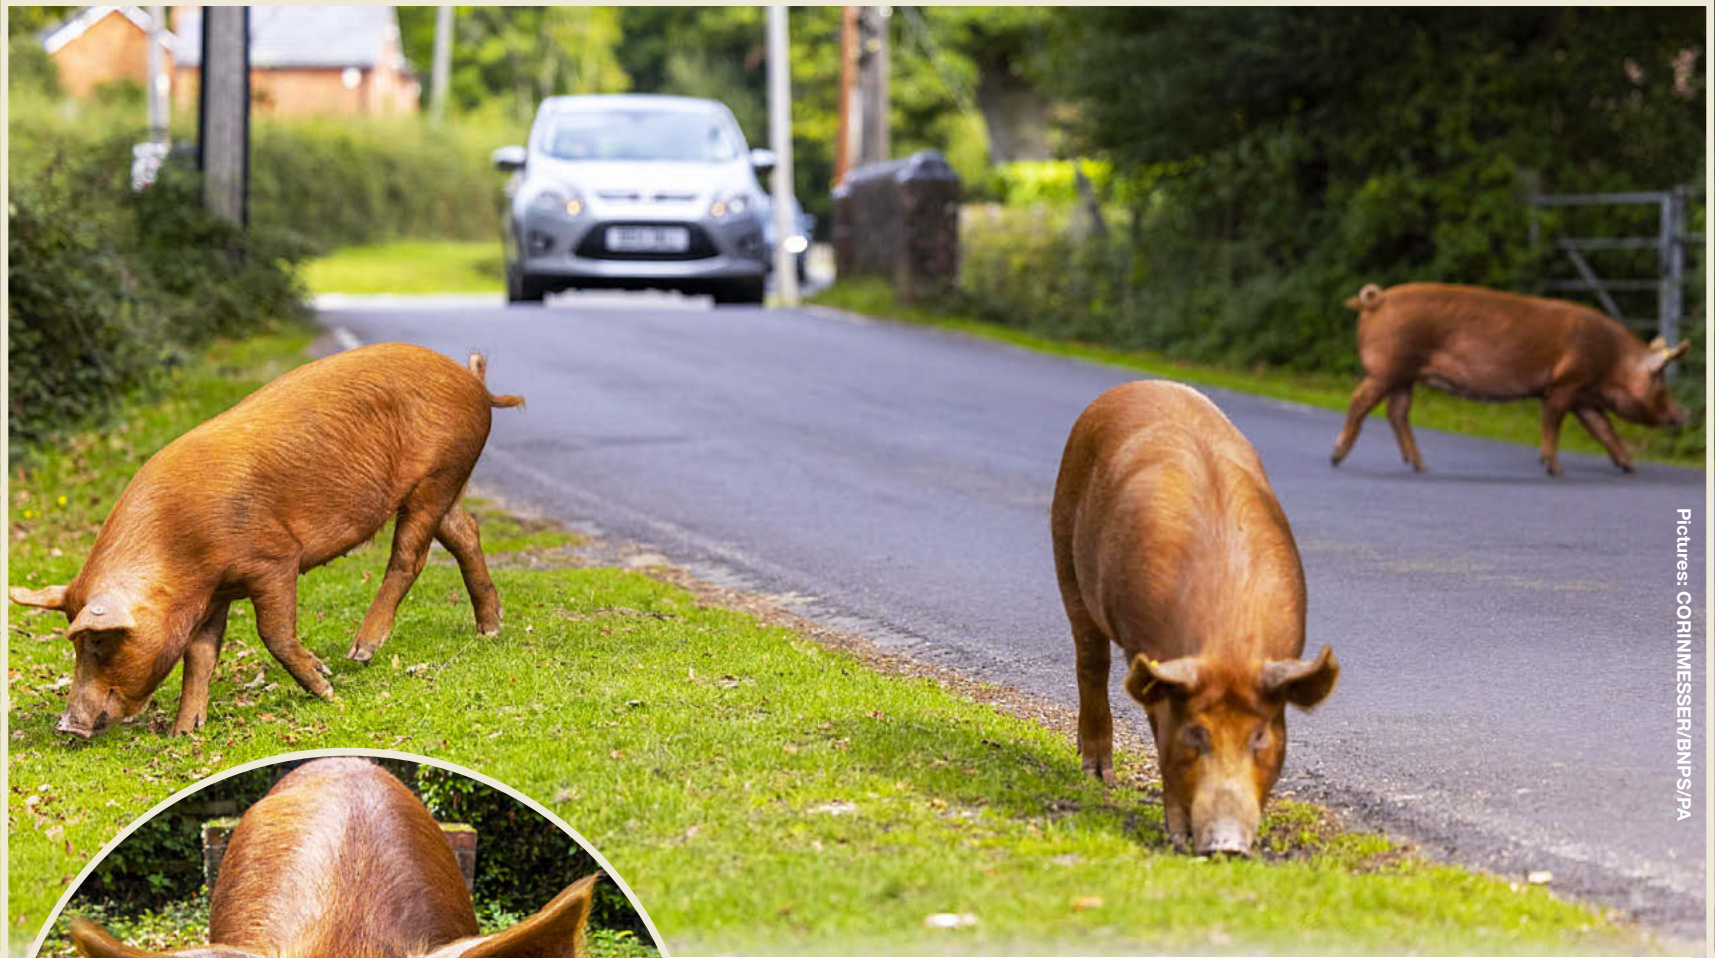

Fexting means fighting with someone via texts instead of talking in person.

Barkitecture is designing a house or the inside of a house around the needs of one's pets.

And a ghost colleague is an employee who works alone, often at home, and is not in frequent contact with other staff.

This year has already seen GOAT (greatest of all time) and sharent (a parent who shares photos of their child) all added.

A spokesman said: "From funny to bizarre, the dictionary is constantly being updated."

OUR FAVE WORDS REVEALED

WE ALL A CUDDLE

by STIAN ALEXANDER

CUDDLE is the most loved of all the 171,476 words in the Oxford English Dictionary, it has been revealed.

The word, defined as "the action of holding somebody close in your arms to show love", was the one people liked reading, hearing and saying more than any other.

Picturesque, aurora, kerfuffle and lullaby were other favourite words in the study by greetings card firm Thortful. Others that just missed out on the top 10 included jovial, nook, oblivion, effervescence and incandescence.

Rachel Butterworth, 45, of Pinner, north west London, said she is drawn to the sound of the words, especially those that conjure up feelings.

The wardrobe mistress, who took part in the survey, said: "My favourite word of all is petrichor, which to me sounds exactly like what it describes, the strong peaty wet smell after a deluge of rain."

Least favourite words included hiraeth, vellichor, syzygy, limerance and denouement.

Feline film boost

UNWANTED cats are set to benefit from an upcoming film release.

Cats Protection is joining forces with Cantilever Media on The Amazing Maurice to spread the word about the charity's work helping to give moggies a better quality of life.

The organisations will embark on a number of initiatives in the run up to the Sky Original animated film's release, inset, including promotions and in-store events.

They will also be launching a wide range of Amazing Maurice merchandise, and will be putting on a live concert performance of the film. Money raised will go to the feline charity.

Andrew Baker, producer at Cantilever Media and CEO of Cantilever Rights, said: "We have an eclectic and exciting plan of initiatives which we hope will raise awareness of the film and the incredible and vital work the organisation does to improve the lives of cats across the country."

The film, which is based on a children's fantasy by the late Sir Terry Pratchett, will be available on Sky Cinema in December.

GET TO TOOTH OF THE MATTER

KEEPING our furry friends' teeth in tip-top condition is important to prevent dental problems.

And as September is Pet Smile Month, it's the perfect opportunity to brush up on our pets' dental hygiene.

PDSA vet nurse Nina Downing said: "Brushing our teeth is second nature to us, but it is just as important for our pets. Like us they can suffer from tooth and gum disease, which can be painful and lead to other more serious conditions."

Here's how to care for your canine companion's teeth...

● Brush their teeth regularly, using a pet-safe toothpaste and toothbrush. Let them have a taste of the toothpaste, then use a soft finger brush to get your dog used to having their mouth touched. When they're ready, introduce a proper brush.

● Swap treats for dental chews. These are specifically designed to help maintain healthy teeth and gums.

● Feed them kibble. Dry food will help remove plaque that builds up throughout the day.

● Use an oral gel daily. These are quick and easy to apply and will help remove and defend against plaque and tartar.

Symptoms of dental disease include bleeding gums, bad breath and discoloured teeth. If your pet shows any of these signs, a vet visit is needed.

THE BLUFFER'S GUIDE TO ELEPHANTS

with PAUL DONNELLEY

Today is Elephant Appreciation Day so here are some facts about pachyderms.

- ☐ Elephants are pregnant for 22 months – the longest gestation period of any mammal.
- ☐ Their menstrual cycle lasts from three to four months – humans have a 28-day cycle.
- ☐ Lady elephants can get pregnant three or four times per year. But they can give birth up to the age of 50.
- ☐ Elephants are born blind and weigh up to 260lb at birth. They can walk an hour after being born.
- ☐ If a baby elephant dies, its mother can suffer depression and drag the corpse around behind her for days.
- ☐ Surprisingly, elephants are afraid of bees. Some farmers use beehives to deter elephants rather than electric fences.
- ☐ Dumbo (1941), Disney's fourth cartoon feature film, was made to try to earn back losses on Pinocchio and Fantasia.
- ☐ Elephants have the longest eyelashes of any animal in the world – around five inches long.
- ☐ The oldest elephant lived to be 86. He was called Lin Wang and was recruited into the Japanese army during World War Two.
- ☐ The original version of Nellie The Elephant was released in 1956, sung by child actress Mandy Miller and produced by George Martin who would go on to produce The Beatles.
- ☐ Jumbo the elephant was a favourite attraction at London Zoo before he was sold to showman P.T. Barnum in 1882.
- ☐ Taken to America, Jumbo was killed in St Thomas, Ontario, Canada, on September 15, 1885, when he was hit by a train.
- ☐ An elephant's trunk can weigh up to 400lb, has around 150,000 muscle units and can hold 1¾ gallons of water.
- ☐ There are three different species of elephant: African bush, African forest and Indian. African elephants have much larger ears than their Indian cousins.
- ☐ African bush elephants are the world's largest land animals and can weigh up to seven tons.
- ☐ The "Blue Peter elephant" that stood on John Noakes' foot and pooped in the studio on July 3, 1969, was called Lulu and lived at Chessington Zoo.

Elephants can spend up to 16 hours a day eating.

The elephant's closest living relative is a creature called the hyrax, which has been described as looking like "a large guinea pig with a grouchy-looking overbite".

Known for crossing the Alps on elephants in 218 BC, only six of the beasts survived Hannibal's trek and five of those died within a year of his arrival in Gaul.

Elephants are the only mammals with four knees and the only ones that cannot jump.

ON MARCH: Men out in Leicester

Masked gangs roam streets in temple protest

by JERRY LAWTON, Chief Crime Correspondent
VIOLENT clashes between Muslims and Hindus spread from Leicester to Birmingham – with fears they could engulf Britain.

Bottles and firecrackers were thrown as 200 masked men gathered outside a Hindu temple in Smethwick, after tensions were stoked by lies online.

Protesters vowed to disrupt an appearance by a controversial speaker – who did not turn up in the end.

Tuesday night's sectarian clashes echoed those 44 miles away in Leicester at the weekend when police arrested 47 people as tensions boiled over after a recent cricket match between India and Pakistan.

It came after footage of violence following the August 28 match was shared on social media.

Leicester East Labour MP Claudia Webbe said: "If we do not understand the root cause, this will spread beyond Leicester to other areas."

"The Government needs to intervene and ensure that social media platforms stop this from getting much, much worse."

Police said they are investigating attacks on both communities, including assaults on Muslim men and the egging of a Hindu

And mosque leaders disputed claims that Hindus had stormed the building and shouted at people who were praying.

A.I. MAY LET US HAVE WHALE OF A TIME SOON BUT

★ SCIENTISTS are exploring how A.I. could help us communicate with whales and other animals in future.
In his new book How To Speak Whale: A Voyage Into The Future of Animals, filmmaker Tom Mustill explores how our relationship with animals is changing.
★ Here KIM CARR looks at the surprising ways animals communicate with each other...

WHITE RHINO

BRINGING a whole new meaning to being dumped, these beasts unload their messages to each other in communal dung heaps called middens. Rummaging through them they can tell if another rhino is ready to mate or is ill.

CARIBBEAN REEF SQUID

THE sea creatures can change the colour of their skin to court mate, warn of predators and even double up on messages so a different one is shot out from each side of their body.

AFRICAN ELEPHANTS

USING what is called infrasound, these creatures can hear each other more than 175 miles away through vibrations which are below 20 hertz, far too low for us to even notice.

RAVENS

SAID to guard the Tower of London, if you spot one of these birds using sign language then something might be afoot. They use their beaks and wings to show stones and twigs to attract a mate. And clasp their bills together and moving one at the same time is them sending a bonding message.

AFRICAN DEMON MOLE RATS

SPENDING their days in under the ground, these creatures contact each other by banging. Whacking their heads against the tops of their tunnels, they send vibrations of different kinds to pass messages on.

CRITTERS ALREADY KNOW HOW TO COMMUNICATE

ALCON BLUE BUTTERFLY CATERPILLAR

THIS crafty little bug scrapes its abdomen into a tune which imitates the red ant queen, meaning red ants will act like soldiers and protect it, even killing their own in the process.

BEES

WHEN a bee finds a honey source it goes back to the hive to spread the sweet news by doing a dance while the rest of the bees touch its tummy. The direction and speed of the dance allows them to communicate where to find that precious nectar so they can share the love.

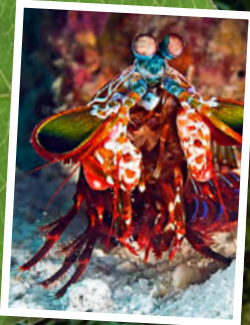

SILVERBACK GORILLAS

SINGING to yourself usually means you are content, much like the way silverback gorillas hum and sing when they are eating, which is a sign to others that they want to be left alone. Until they're quiet it means they're not in the mood for company.

squawking me chum?

MANTIS SHRIMP

THEY can tune into 16 colour receptors compared to our three, so it's no wonder mantis shrimp communicate by bouncing polarised light off their bodies which other animals can't view.

BISON

FORGET queuing up to place your vote, bison decide who to follow by waiting to see a member of the herd walk 20 or more steps in one direction without stopping to graze. They'll be followed by those who trust the decision and that creature will be the leader until the process happens all over again.

DHOLES

FOX-LIKE, slinky Asiatic wild dogs whistle at each other to share locations of prey so packs can get together to take down animals larger than they are.

APES

THESE great beasts use 46 of the 52 gestures which human toddlers do to get their point across. That includes clapping, stomping and shaking their heads.

BLUE-CAPPED CORDON BLEU BIRD

HOLDING a piece of nesting material in their beak, these male and female birds tap dance to let a mate know they're interested in a bit of company. Their heads will bob up and down as they sing at the same time as moving their feet to show off their fitness.

Andy Lea's telly movies

AD ASTRA ★★★ (2019) Film4, 9pm The plot of Apocalypse Now is sent into orbit in this sci-fi in which Brad Pitt's astronaut heads to Neptune to hunt for his missing dad (Tommy Lee Jones) who went nuts on a mission three decades earlier. There are some stunning special effects but the pace flags in the final act.

THE CHRISTMAS CANDLE ★★ (2013), GREAT! movies christmas, 12am If you can't find your calendar (it's September) and are desperate to see Susan Boyle acting alongside an Oscar-nominated actress (Lesley Manville) this bizarre, festive fantasy is worth staying up for. The Britain's Got Talent plays a singing church warden from a chocolate box English village which, according to legend, is visited every 25 years by a wish-bestowing angel.

HotTV CHOICE With Mike Ward

I'm not one to exaggerate, nor to give a programme any more hype than it deserves, but I can honestly say I haven't been as excited about a final of CELEBRITY MASTERCHEF (8.30pm, BBC One) since the last final of Celebrity MasterChef. As is customary, we began this latest competition with 20 contestants, of varying levels of ability, fame and annoyingness (be honest, you know who I'm referring to), and somehow or other, I guess by the sheer magic of TV, we've ended up with just three.

Along the way, of the contestants who've been asked to leave, having been told by Gregg and John that their MasterChef journey is sadly at an end, hardly any have stormed out the back and kicked a whopping great hole in the door of their locker, which to me speaks volumes about the sheer good naturedness of this programme.

But that's not to say each of our remaining trio, having come this far, won't be desperate to get their hands on that famous trophy, even if, in the cold light of day, they'll realise it's actually quite ugly and best deployed as a doorstep in the downstairs loo.

Elsewhere tonight, James has the hump in ALL CREATURES GREAT AND SMALL (9pm, Channel 5).

Last week Siegfried rewarded his efforts, you may recall, by making him junior partner at the vet's. But having had time to reflect, how is the boss feeling about that grand gesture of his? A little rash?

Well, yes, kind of you to care, but I've got myself some ointment so it'll be gone in a day or two.

TV HOSTS: 'Queue jumpers'

Holly and Phil think they are above us anyone who thinks they're above everybody who queued up for hours and hours have got a bloody cheek. Susanna Reid and her 81 year old mother waited 7 hours, shame on u phil and holly. Scouse edd

Phil and holly did not need to go into Westminster as it was shown quite a bit on TV. they done it for their show. But there was no need for this. anon

Wallyby & Schoself-obsessed moaning about them queue-jumping! Guess they were wearing black face masks to cover their smug faces! WIDOW VULTURE

Truss already looking after her rich pals

Liz truss proving straight away who she'll be looking after as PM - big business and the rich and sod the poor. Why does england keep voting these people. Obviously a mental problem. rj

So PM Liz Truss defends lifting the cap on the greedy Elites bonuses. Yes you are truly a Tory leader for the Elite Lizzy but here's what awaits you and your NASTY PARTY in the next General Election. The worst defeat of any political party for many years, so perhaps that's why you're filling your bank accounts while you can. Here's the choice the Electorate has, it's the Liz Truss favourite of the wealthy and favourite Landlords for the Freeloading Illegals in Hotels or Labour and Lib Dems who can't be any worse than Trusses Tory Circus. Tod in reality this country is living way beyond its means and has been doing so well before the corvid pandemic. Constant borrowing while being lax with dire decisions to protect the fragile economy. Truss is already evoking johnson's policy in protecting the wealthy shareholders and bankers by easing their commitments to the fragile economy is alarming. frank aston

Liz Truss, I see your going to look after bankers bonuses. Well we the majoritary of people don't want any FRACKING anywhere in this country so go and "FRACK OFF" - can't see you as PM for long. EBG

If Liz Truss can give billions next year to Ukraine then she can give us pensioners double the triple lock rise to help, why people think the state pension is good enough to live on - they want to try living on it instead of moaning. Barry Tunbridge Wells

Vlad the Red putin threatening 2 use nuclear weapons, poses a global threat 2 world like hitler. Action from NATO wil b necessary. ANGST

President Biden says he will send American troops in if China invade Taiwan, well he can count us out - it will start WW3. Scousemum well done Dawn Neesom for your lovely article regarding the Queen and family. How about you moving to number 10? You make more sense than anybody else. EC may I commend the grenadier guards who carried the Queens coffin. Our country and their families should be so proud of them. Me thinks that king Charles should take them out to lunch. Thomas M.

folk everywhere shouting that the lads carrying the queens coffin should be given an award! I disagree! The whole bloody lot of em should get one - from 'street liners' the matelots pulling the gun carriage the gaurds of honour the whole damn lot of em!!! APPLE'S new AirPods Pro wireless earbuds go on sale tomorrow. Buyers can expect better sound and improved battery life.

★ BT is offering a tempting reason to switch from Sky.

Up for grabs are some premium TV channels, a Netflix subscription and a feature-packed set-top box for £6 per month.

★ The deal is available to anyone who signs up for broadband from the telecoms giant.

★ SKY is offering the "best ever" price for its Glass TV.

The gogglebox is now available from £37 per month which includes Sky channels and access to all your Netflix favourites.

★ Sky Glass has an in-built soundbar and there's no need for a dish as content is beamed to the big screen via a broadband connection.

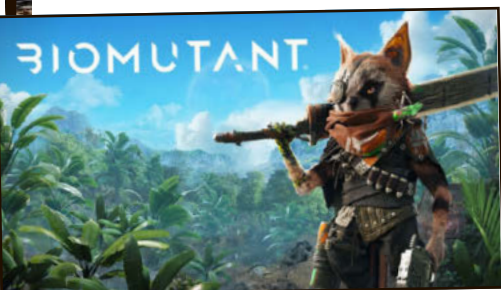

★ JUST got the iPhone 14? You might want to pop it inside one of these tough new cases from Mous.

The firm is so confident in its accessories it has put them through the ultimate drop test by throwing iPhone 14 models from a height of 60ft while bungee jumping.

★ They survived without even a scratch. Prices start from £50.

MUTANTS TAKE FIVE

ACTION role-play game Biomutant has been given a stunning PS5 makeover.

And if you've got the original PS4 game you can upgrade your version for free.

It's a decent, if not mind-blowing title and probably isn't worth buying brand new. But if you liked the original and want to see it in all its visual glory, utilising everything the PS5

BIOMUTANT
(PSS & Xbox Series X)
★★★ from £34.99

machines can throw at it, it's worth a free upgrade.

The game is an open-world, post-apocalyptic kung-fu fable. You play a mutant critter with a big old gun and some kickass moves as you battle your way through overgrown lands trying to save the world.

It's all about big boss battles and unlocking new abilities and mutations to improve your character's fighting mechanics as the difficulty of enemies ramps up.

For those with the original, it's a bit of a no-brainer to download and resample this version.

Bright idea!

DASH OF COLOUR: Nanoleaf Sonic and WiZ lights

WITH energy bills about to rocket, we are all looking for ways to cut down on the amount of power we munch through.

Just in time for the darker autumn nights, one firm has come up with a bright idea that uses your wi-fi to switch on and off the lights as you move from room to room.

WiZ, which is owned by the same company as Philips Hue, is launching a new range of SpaceSense gadgets that can detect movement via tiny disturbances in the wi-fi signal that's whizzing around your property.

As you walk into a room, these invisible waves get moved around - a bit like when you wade into a swimming pool and create ripples.

The firm claims that by

WI-FI LIGHTS CUT COSTS

measuring the small deviations in signal strength, its WiZ lights can determine if there is a person in the room.

Once it spots a change in the force, the lights will come on and as soon as things settle down the bulbs switch off.

And don't worry about the pet cat illuminating your house while you are tucked up in bed as the sensitivity can be changed to suit your needs.

The best part about this technology is that it does not require additional hardware, with everything working via a smartphone app and the WiZ range of light bulbs. It's out later this month.

★ GAMERS now can brighten up their walls at a cheaper price.

The Sonic Limited Edition Starter Kit from Nanoleaf snaps together to create an image of the famous hedgehog's face.

When these lights launched back in April they cost £300, but that's now been reduced to £250 at stores including Currys.

JUST JANE

JANE O'GORMAN SOLVES
YOUR PROBLEMS TODAY
... AND EVERY DAY

Rattled by two snakes

WHEN my fella walked out, he laid the blame firmly at my door.

He said that he had to go because I was never there for him.

I pleaded it wasn't my fault: my mum was ill and needed me. But he still packed his bags.

Now my oldest friend has admitted she slept with him every time I went away.

She claims it was all his idea. He was horny and she was available.

Now she says she feels a whole lot better for getting that "off her chest", but I've been left in pieces.

How am I supposed to trust anyone again?

JANE SAYS: You can't blame yourself for what they did on the sly.

The sad truth is the two people you trusted let you down. Now the road is clear, you can be anyone you want to be.

Keep your eyes and ears more open in future, but don't let them make you bitter or mistrustful.

Just make sure you stay strong in case either of these snakes ever comes slithering around again. This period is a new beginning.

Consign them to history because they weren't there for you when you were under the cosh and needed them the most.

Your best form of revenge is success.

Boyfriend romps with old women

THINKS THEY'RE SEXIER

I'M my boyfriend's official partner, but he sleeps with other lovers on the side.

He has a thing for much older women and talks dirty to them online. He goes away for luxury weekends and gets them to buy him expensive gifts.

He huffs that there's room in his life for all sorts of people and that he won't be bound by the rules of convention, but what about my feelings?

It's not nice knowing that he's out getting his rocks off with women who are 20, 30 or even 40 years older than me.

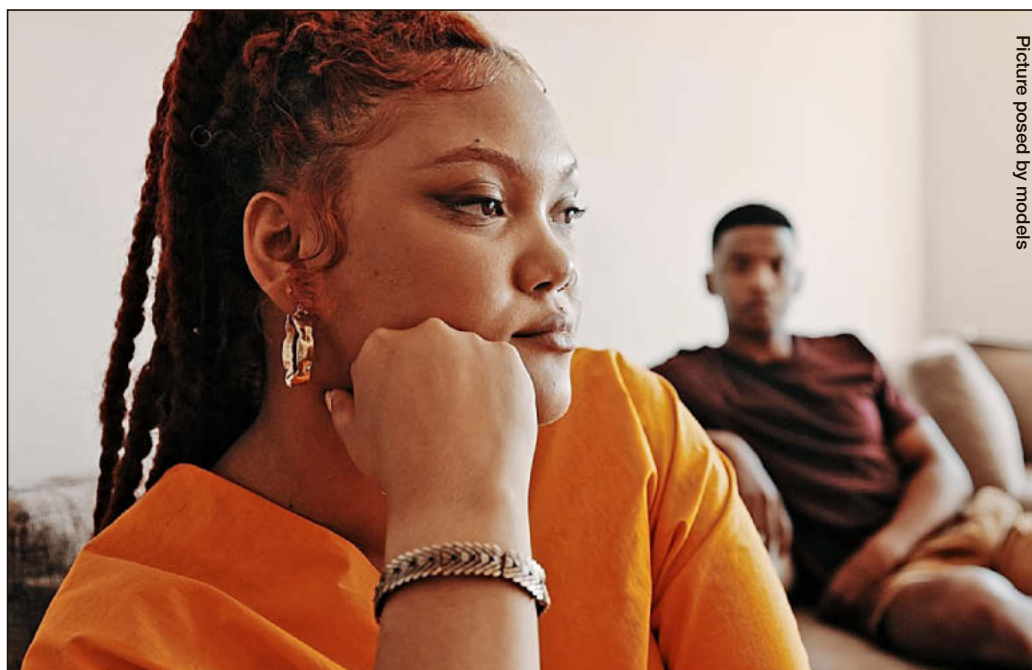

I'm 28 and I've accused him of only staying with me because I give him credibility and cover.

He says I'm daft. But his parents and boss are very traditional and I'm the one he wheels out for family gatherings and official work functions.

He argues that the older women's experiences and wisdom put them above younger women.

When I point out that older women also tend to have healthy savings accounts and pensions too, he doesn't deny it, but perseveres with the argument that "sexy seniors" tend to be less inhibited sexually and more grateful.

The other night we had a dreadful row during which he also admitted that granny porn is

Picture posed by models

SENIOR MOMENTS: She's angry over his fetish for mature ladies and thinks he's using her his favourite when he needs to fire himself up for sex with me.

He's very defensive. He says that he can't and won't explain his tastes.

Apparently, he's always been the same - always fancied his mates' mums growing up.

He admits that before me he was with a mature lady, who treated him like a little prince and paid all his bills. He was forced to finish with her because his parents didn't approve.

He insists that he loves me, but he's not prepared to lie about who is he and what turns him on.

How am I supposed to respond to that?

JANE SAYS: If your boyfriend is more attracted to older women, that's who he should be with.

Tell him that he can access as many porn sites and date as many grannies as he likes - as a single man.

He can't continue to use you in order to keep his parents quiet. Clearly, they have a lot of influence over him.

Is this because they have high expectations or he's hoping to inherit?

If they're deeply religious or conventional in their thinking, he needs to explain that he's an adult with tastes of his own and that's not about to change any time soon.

I worry that the longer you stay with him, the more your confidence and self-esteem are going to be eroded.

The problem is that you're not what he's looking for in a woman and you're wasting your life by hanging around.

Brush yourself off and get out of there with your head held high.

If you're simply sticking with him out of habit or you're worried about life on the other side as a single woman, then break out because this is no way to live.

I need drink to get sex

I LONG for a loving partner to do ordinary day-to-day things with - but I lack confidence.

I can only approach women - with a view to having sex - when I'm drunk.

At work I keep my head down and avoid female colleagues.

Yet out in a club or bar I'm full of cheeky chat-up lines. Drink gives me confidence like nothing else.

Yes, I do have a good casual sex success rate, but I've never had a full-time girlfriend because I'm a dead loss in the cold light of day.

How do I change this soulless situation?

JANE SAYS: Do you need to accept that drink has become something of a problem that needs to be addressed?

See drinkaware.co.uk. At the moment you're living a double life - you're either too quiet or too brash.

You need to aim for a balance and you can't allow alcohol to be your crutch.

You're clearly an attractive individual, as women are drawn to you, but loveless sex isn't the answer.

Take up an activity like drama, singing or sports in order to gain confidence and meet a new group of people who'll accept you for who you are.

Wife could be having affair

I WANT children but my wife does not. She's on the Pill and refuses to come off it.

The other night she went out with her "friend" and came home blind drunk. She dropped her handbag in the hall and the contents spilt all over the carpet.

Why did she have a packet of condoms in there?

JANE SAYS: Was she looking after them for a friend? Is she practising safe sex with someone else?

Condoms protect against sexually transmitted infections as well as pregnancy. Ask her to tell you the truth. Sadly, if she is in a sexual relationship with someone, do you need to find someone new?

LEVEY ANGLER

Jockey wants testing inquiry

WRONGED jockey Sean Levey hopes lessons will be learned from the debacle which robbed him of landing a £20,000 bonus.

The jockey said he felt “aggrieved” after missing the chance of winning the lucrative Racing League top jockey award when he was stood down by raceday stewards last Wednesday.

Levey’s instant saliva test produced a positive result for amphetamine, a prohibited substance.

He immediately requested a urine sample, which came back negative – but it has cost him eight days of wages, plus a shot at the five-figure sum in the unique competition.

Levey, who took the Qipco 1,000

■ by MELISSA JONES

Guineas in 2018 on the longest-priced winner Billesdon Brook (66-1), returns with five booked rides at Haydock on Friday.

“Although I am happy to be back riding later this week, it’s hard not to feel aggrieved at what has happened to me the last few days,” said Levey in a statement.

“Some might say I’ve been unlucky with the false positive happening just before the Racing League final, but I sincerely hope that there are lessons to be learned from this and that similar things don’t happen to jockeys in the future.”

And, later, Levey told At The Races: “I hadn’t taken anything and I was innocent. It has tarnished my name. And I still haven’t heard anything back from the BHA as far as an apology is concerned.”

Rapid saliva testing, which gives initial results in 15 minutes, was introduced in the sport last May.

Jockeys are stood down if they fail a test, while a further sample undergoes more detailed checks in the laboratory.

In Levey’s absence, Saffie Osborne raced to the top of the Racing League standings with a stunning 6,539-1 treble at Newcastle’s grand finale.

A spokesperson for the British Horseracing Authority said: “The BHA can confirm that Sean Levey is able to ride and will be making no further comment at this time as the matter remains confidential.”

INNOCENT: Sean Levey missed out on a £20,000 bonus due to a false positive saliva test

Vadeni heads for the Arc

■ by MELISSA JONES

A SPELL of good weather has swayed Vadeni’s team to have a crack at the Qatar Prix de l’Arc de Triomphe.

Connections made the U-turn after originally pencilling in a trip to Qipco British Champions Day for the Coral-Eclipse hero (below).

The dual Group One winner’s hat-trick bid was thwarted by a troubled passage when third behind Arc favourite Luxembourg at Leopardstown.

“He doesn’t need good ground as such, but he doesn’t need to have it very slow or deep or challenging,” Georges Rimaud, manager of the Aga Khan’s studs in France, said.

In Paris on October 2, Churchill’s son aims to give owner the Aga Khan his first success since Zarkava in 2008.

A final fence blunder robbed Hewick of another big pot in yesterday’s Kerry National at Listowel.

That presented victory in the €200,000 showpiece to Joseph O’Brien’s Busselton (13-2).

fight in July

CHINWAG

JOE JOYCE has been warned by David Haye he cannot rely on his "granite chin" to beat Joseph Parker.

The Brit is renowned for his ability to take a punch and "The Juggernaut" loves to walk down opponents before flattening them.

But Haye (inset) believes that tactic could backfire against the hard-hitting Kiwi at Manchester's AO Arena on Saturday in their clash for the WBO interim heavyweight title.

"When you ask anyone about Joe Joyce's attributes, the first thing they all say is his granite chin," said the former WBA heavyweight king. "He can take an obscene amount of abuse."

"He's got a great chin, but everyone has a great chin until you don't have a great chin. Tyson Fury had a great chin until Deontay Wilder nailed him and then he was on the canvas."

"You can't fight at world level consistently taking concussive punches, it just doesn't work, it never has worked."

"Joyce has got great reflexes. Although he doesn't have a style that appears explosive, he's very, very explosive."

"He just needs to apply those attributes into a style that doesn't mean getting punched in the head with every big shot his opponent throws because that can only take him so far."

Haye claims Joyce must be clever against Parker (right) because the former WBO title holder is the first elite fighter the Olympic silver medalist has faced in his 14-fight unbeaten pro career. "Joyce hasn't fought

Haye warns Joyce about rolling with the punches

EXCLUSIVE

by DAVID ANDERSON

anyone world class yet," he said. "The best opponent he's fought was domestic level in Daniel Dubois and Dubois hadn't done it at world level when they fought."

"Parker is a whole other animal. He's been there, seen it, done it. He is legitimately world class. He's a former WBO champion. He wasn't gifted that. He beat Andy Ruiz Jr, who has knocked out Anthony Joshua and 'King Kong' Luis Ortiz."

"The only two losses on his resume so far are AJ and Dillian Whyte."

"That Whyte defeat showed Parker is world class because even when it was all going against him - he was losing, he'd been dropped - he managed to come back and put an onslaught on and so nearly won."

"Parker is improving, I've seen improvements in his performances, particularly in his last two fights against Derek Chisora."

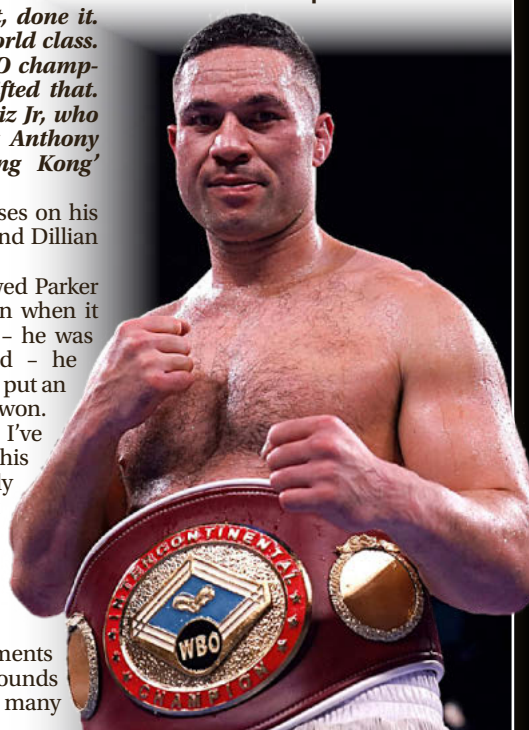

"With Joyce, we haven't seen that yet. He's always been a massive, heavy favourite, apart from Dubois."

"Has he made the adjustments where he isn't losing rounds because he's eating too many punches? That's an unknown against domestic opponents, let alone world-class opponents."

"If Parker is world class in this fight, Joyce doesn't have a chance."

Allen key to Bills breaking hoodoo

QUARTERBACK Josh Allen is ready to help the Buffalo Bills end nearly 30 years of hurt and lead them to their first Super Bowl win.

A 41-7 victory over the Tennessee Titans on Monday made it two wins out of two for Allen (inset) and sets up a thriller on Sunday against division rivals the Miami Dolphins, who are also 2-0.

Long-suffering Bills fans, still smarting from a run of four straight Super Bowl defeats in the early 1990s, are beginning to believe this is their year.

Allen, who threw four touchdowns on Monday, believes that in this form, his Bills will take some stopping. "When we execute how we know we're supposed to execute, success typically leads to success," he said.

"We're just trying to be the best version of ourselves."

It has not been all good news for Buffalo this week, however, with lineman Bobby Hart suspended for hitting an opposition coach. The 6ft 5in Bills star was aiming at a Titans player after the game but hit a coach instead, although Hart plans to appeal his one-match ban.

The Dolphins will be a big test after they stormed back from a 21-point deficit to stun the Baltimore Ravens 42-38 on Sunday.

Another perfect 2-0 team, the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, also have suspension problems with wide receiver Mike Evans banned for this weekend's clash with the Green Bay Packers.

The Bucs, without injured receivers Chris Godwin and Julio Jones, have lost Evans after he sparked a mass brawl in a scrap with Marshon Lattimore as Tampa beat the New Orleans Saints.

Of the league's other perfect 2-0 teams, the Philadelphia Eagles visit division rivals Washington on Sunday.

Federer: Family so relieved it's all over

ROGER FEDERER yesterday revealed his wife Mirka is relieved and his children cried at the news of his retirement from tennis.

And the Swiss superstar admitted he lived in fear of further damage to his injured right knee and is nervous before his farewell performance at the Laver Cup tomorrow night.

Federer, 41, has had three knee surgeries as he battled to keep his career alive.

"The last few years have been tough for me, but I think it was even tougher for Mirka," said Federer. "With all the injuries, she didn't enjoy watching me anymore. I felt sorry for her too. It's a great relief for her now that it's over."

The reaction of his two sets of twins - 13-year-old by NEIL McLEMAN daughters Myla and Charlene and eight-year-old sons Lenny and Leo - was mixed.

Federer said: "I told them the day before. I said it to all four at the same time and three out of four cried."

Federer (inset), a 20-time Grand Slam winner, has achieved nearly everything in the game but he has never retired before.

"I've had a lump in my stomach for the past two or three weeks," he said.

"Being able to talk about it in a normal fashion without getting emotional, just because I know how much it means to me."

"I probably went through a lot of different stages."

"I don't know if you can call it grieving. But now I feel good."

CRASH 'N
BURNOUT

ASHES legend Steve Harmison fears next summer's Test series against Australia – squeezed into a 46-day window – is a recipe for burnout.

Just 24 hours before Sir Andrew Strauss publishes his High Performance Review, Lord's confirmed the worst-kept secret in cricket.

The 2023 Ashes will cram five Tests into six and a half weeks and it will be over by the end of July, giving The Hundred a free run in August.

At 46 days, it is the shortest window ever allocated in England for a series which is supposed to be Test cricket's jewel in the crown.

Harmison, a key member of the England side who regained the urn after 18 years in 2005, said:

"Even if the players can handle

Harmy goes barmy over Test squeeze

EXCLUSIVE

by MIKE WALTERS

the physical demands of such a packed schedule, the mental toll could be too much."

Earlier this summer, England Test skipper Ben Stokes quit one-day international cricket, hinting that the fixture calendar was placing an unsustainable burden on multi-format players.

And new white-ball captain Jos Buttler struggled to contain his dismay at a schedule of 12 limited-overs international fixtures in 24 days against India and South Africa in July.

Harmison (above), now coaching Durham, warned the demands on players' fitness and mental stamina are in danger of reaching a tipping point.

He said: "Back-to-back Test matches are nothing new, but when they go back to back to back, with little recovery time, that's a challenge and not everybody will be able to handle it."

There is widespread discontent that the 2023 summer does not feature a single day of international cricket in August, bar a Twenty20 game against New Zealand at Durham on August 30, to accommodate The Hundred.

But Harmison said: "Franchise cricket is encroaching more and more on the calendar, and the windows to play Test series are becoming smaller, but the players can't have it both ways."

"If they are happy to accept the big money that comes with playing in Twenty20 franchises or competitions like The Hundred, they must expect the timelines for Test cricket to be more limited."

In the women's multi-format Ashes, England will play a five-day Test for the first game, with the opening clash taking place at Trent Bridge.

■ LONDON will stage the next two World Test Championship finals. The Oval will play host next year and Lord's will stage it in 2025.

New Zealand won the inaugural contest last year against India at the Ageas Bowl, Southampton.

Hamilton fuelled it

by LUKE CHILLINGSWORTH

CHRISTIAN HORNER has blamed Lewis Hamilton for causing the bad blood which defined his epic Formula One title fight with Max Verstappen last season. The Dutchman won the drivers' championship at the final race in Abu Dhabi in highly controversial circumstances.

Speaking to F1's 'Beyond the Grid' podcast, Red Bull boss Horner said: "I've never once heard Lewis recognise Max's ability and so, of course, there was just a bit more needle to it."

"You could feel that and you could sense that between those two drivers."

"There has always been a respect."

"But everybody is beatable at some point in time and Max had respect for him, but he wasn't in awe of him. He believed that he could beat him."

KNEE HIGH

PERC-EVERED: Mark Percival has got himself back fit after a serious injury

EXCLUSIVE

by DAVE CRAVEN

ST HELENS star Mark Percival has told how just weeks ago he feared he might never play again – but is now steaming into the Super League Grand Final.

The England centre, 28, faces Leeds in Saturday's Old Trafford decider as Saints bid for an unprecedented fourth straight title.

But he has spent most of this campaign hobbling around, sidelined by a "weird" knee injury which simply didn't want to go away.

After four months out, Percival finally did make a timely return in last Saturday's semi-final win over Salford.

But it is only now he's revealed the full alarming truth about the problems he's faced.

Percival said: "I had a small fracture in my knee that I played with for a few weeks."

"The pain management was OK and I could do it and wanted to play."

"But then it caused bone fluid, which isn't good. It can cause other things to go really bad in the structure of your knee."

"I was seeing a few specialists and they said while that fluid was there, I wasn't allowed to play until it started showing resolution."

"I just had to rest it and go on crutches a few days at a time to take the pressure off completely."

"It doesn't sound much and when you explain to people they probably do feel, 'Ah, just get on with it'."

"But it wasn't like that. It was quite serious. If I'd carried on playing at that moment in time, I could have ended up ruining my career and not playing again." Thankfully, Percival did get the all-clear recently and successfully came through his long-awaited return unscathed.

Pumped-up Percival has shaken off injury trouble

But on his enforced absence, he said: "It was very frustrating as I felt great. I wanted to carry on but the specialist just wouldn't allow it."

"It was a bit hush-hush at the time but I'm back now and won't shy away from the truth. I had to take that time to rest but the rest just turned into months as the risk was so high coming back playing."

"I'm only 28 and want to make sure I get the best out of myself for the next five years or so."

"But the good thing is the knee has improved. I feel a lot better."

And Saints stand just 80 minutes away from history. Percival, who hopes to prove his fitness for the World Cup next month, added: "I'm happy as now we're in the Grand Final and I've another chance."

"We're expecting the absolute best from Leeds. They are a great team with some great players. If we're not on it, they'll beat us."

"But we had a couple of players back last week and now we're building on that. We'll do anything we can to get that win."

■ MORGAN KNOWLES is free to play in Saturday's Grand Final after the St Helens loose forward successfully won his second appeal against a two-game ban last night.

Sutcliffe hoping for a crazy finish

DEPARTING Liam Sutcliffe admits it will be "crazy" if he can sign off his Leeds Rhinos career as a Grand Final winner again.

The long-serving three-quarter, 27, joins Hull at the end of the season after spending his entire senior career with his hometown club.

Sutcliffe was part

■ by DAVE CRAVEN of the Rhinos side the last time they prospered in 2017, although he missed out on their success two years earlier due to a knee injury.

But Leeds were down in 11th just a few months ago, before their remarkable turnaround, ahead of Saturday's showdown with defending champions St Helens.

The Rhinos ace said: "It really would be crazy to win it again. To think back to when we were relegation candidates to now being 80 minutes away from winning the Grand Final."

"Hopefully we can pull it off. But we have no fear. I know that much."

"If we win, I don't know if I'll be crying with sadness or happiness."

Meanwhile, Liam Moore has been named as referee for the showpiece event at Old Trafford on Saturday for the second year running.

■ EX-LEEDS and England prop Adrian Morley and 1972 World Cup-winning captain Clive Sullivan are among the latest legends to be honoured in rugby league's Hall of Fame.

They will be inducted at a dinner in Wigan next month along with former Wigan and Great Britain captain Andy Farrell and Salford legend David Watkins.

Trent will tough it out

LIVERPOOL star Trent Alexander-Arnold says the Reds have gone back to the drawing board as they tackle a season like no other. The Merseysiders have made a slow start to the campaign and alarm bells began to ring after below-par displays in a 2-1 defeat to Manchester United and a 4-1 Champions League reverse at Napoli. But Alexander-Arnold, who has received some

■ by MARK JONES
fierce criticism, believes a turnaround will come. "It was back to the drawing board after Napoli and making sure that we need to start getting our stuff in order," said the right-back in an interview with Red Bull. "It's hard because it's been different to how other seasons start. "Normally you'll have like three or four games in August, at the weekends, and then it'll be internationals, then they'll start to introduce the Champions League, then it'll be another international. "I always see the first part of the season as like three little blocks of four weeks, with the internationals breaking them up, and each time you'll play a little bit more football. "Whereas now it's like from the get go you're in at the deep end." A first defeat in the Premier League this calendar year at Old Trafford made many sit up and take notice of the Reds' poor form. Alexander-Arnold added: "That was probably the big, bad game we had early on which was rough." ■ TO watch the full interview visit www.redbull.co.uk/trent

DYKES AT DOUBLE

McGinn eases way for Lyndon

■ by GIDEON BROOKS
JOHN MCGINN made amends for his costly World Cup miss by helping Scotland grab control of their Nations League destiny.

SCOTLAND		3
UKRAINE		0

The Scotland captain's wayward header against Ukraine in their semi-final play-off defeat broke Scottish hearts in June.

But his second-half strike at Hampden Park set Steve Clarke's men on their way to victory to put Scotland top of Group B1 with two matches to go.

Second-half substitute Lyndon Dykes produced a superb late cameo, adding two headed goals.

McGinn, along with Scott McTominay, beat out the rhythm that others followed in a convincing performance.

If Scotland can top this Nations League group after the final two games against Republic of Ireland and Ukraine again in Krakow, a play-off place for Euro 2024 will be theirs.

Since Ukraine's victory here

Scotland's progress had "stalled", according to Clarke, with two wins over Armenia either side of a crushing defeat to Ireland in this group.

Yet last night the Scots were vibrant.

Ukraine were fortunate to stay at full strength when Valeriy Bondar felled Che Adams with a cynical shoulder charge when the striker was running through on goal.

Scotland dominated the second half, Aston Villa ace McGinn staying strong to spin Bondar and fire home on 70 minutes.

And Dykes then headed home from two Ryan Fraser corners late on to confirm the points.

SCOTLAND (5-4-1): Gordon 6; Patterson 6 (Hickey 26, 7), McTominay 8, Hendry 7, McKenna 7, Tierney 6 (Taylor 85); Armstrong 5 (Fraser 77), McGinn 7, McGregor 7, Christie 6 (McLean 85); Adams 7 (Dykes 77).

Rudi's on the wind-up

and his comments are bound to rile Blues fans.

Rudiger joined Real Madrid over the summer after establishing himself in the Premier League as one of the world's best centre-halves.

But now he claims he made errors while playing for the Blues in order to grab the attention of fans. He pointed to a 1-0 victory over Newcastle last season as an example of when he purposefully slipped up.

Rudiger, speaking to Germany's Sport1, said: "I'll be honest, I deliberately made a few mistakes because it was just too quiet in the stadium for me during this game. I wanted to wake people up. At the end of the day, football is also entertainment."

BALE'S GOOD VIBRATIONS

Gareth is feeling fit and fresh after stint in States

GARETH BALE breezed into the Wales camp this week beaming a huge Californian smile after being reinvigorated by his move to the USA.

Feeling unwanted and unloved at Real Madrid, Bale was frozen out in Spain, where he ran down his huge contract this summer.

Despite tremendous criticism, including being branded a "parasite", he still inspired Wales as their record scorer and captain.

His feats included a spectacular free-kick against Austria to help Rob Page's men to the World Cup via the play-offs.

But now Bale is so clearly enjoying his football and life again at new club Los Angeles FC, both him and manager Page are excited about what he can produce this winter in Qatar.

Bale, 33, made his 11th appearance of the season in LAFC's 3-1 win on Monday night which kept his club top of the Western Conference. He then jetted into Heathrow the next day and is preparing for his 107th cap tonight in Brussels against Belgium.

If he is suffering from any jet lag, you would never have known yesterday from his upbeat demeanour, body language and remarks.

"Definitely, I am very happy," said Bale. "It feels nice, the fans have been really supportive over there."

"I'm enjoying playing in America. The atmosphere is incredible, they're all supporting the team. I can't ask for any more than that. They've made me feel at home straight away. So it's good vibes from the MLS and hopefully that gives me more confidence going into Wales as well.

"There was a reason I wanted to go to LAFC, they are a club that is really on the rise and is going places."

"This is a new challenge with a new club and new team and it gives you that freshness again about football."

"One I am enjoying and one hopefully I continue to enjoy."

Only two of Bale's appearances this term have been starts and he is yet to complete 90 minutes for LAFC.

But he is still playing a lot more than he did in Spain last term and has scored twice as he continues to build up his fitness.

Bale said: "The last few years I had to come into Wales' camp and try and find something and dig deep and find my fitness.

"Playing games is good for me and where I need to be. I am feeling good and need to maintain that level and keep doing what I am doing."

Bale's physical and mental condition has been well received by Page, who last week signed a four-year contract ahead of Wales' first World Cup appearance in 64 years.

He said: "Gareth was bright and you wouldn't have thought he'd just got off a flight from the States."

"I'm not surprised by his professionalism but I was surprised with how fresh he looked."

Page is facing a World of hurt

■ by JAMES NURSEY

ROB PAGE admits he is "already dreading" naming Wales' historic World Cup squad.

Page has earned the backing of Wales' stars since stepping up to take the helm back in November 2020.

But he knows he faces his toughest decisions yet this winter when he has to name his final 26-man squad for Qatar in Wales' first finals in 64 years.

Last week Page selected a 28-man squad for this week's games with Belgium tonight and Poland on Sunday in the Nations League.

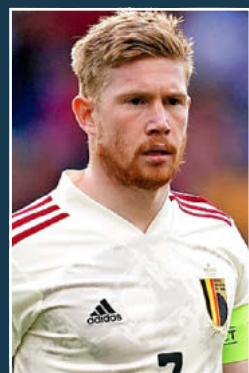

He later also added Birmingham midfielder Jordan James after Joe Allen was ruled out.

Page (below) said: "I'm dreading the 26-man squad for the World Cup because we have so many great players. "We have 30-32 players, so that is the hard part of the job. It will be nothing personal when I have to make those decisions but it is difficult keeping them all happy."

"You just have to be honest with players. If they are not playing, it is because there is somebody who is playing better at this moment in time."

"You are not going to please everybody."

BORED DE BRUYNE FINDS IT ALL SUCH A DRAG

KEVIN DE BRUYNE admits he finds it "boring" to play Wales so regularly.

Belgium skipper De Bruyne (left) is preparing to win his 92nd cap since making his debut in 2010.

Of his near century of caps, eight games

■ by JAMES NURSEY have been against Wales – in which he has scored three times – as the nations have been frequently drawn alongside each other in qualifying.

The Manchester City midfielder openly admits it is a struggle to get too excited for yet another clash with Rob Page's Dragons tonight in Brussels.

And he is not sure how much of a difference it will make to Belgium's preparations for the World Cup as boss Roberto Martinez has such a settled side.

De Bruyne said: "I think half of my international career has been against Wales.

"I don't know why. It is a little bit boring. It is always the same teams."

"But we'll just try to finish the two games as best as possible and get ready for the World Cup. We have been playing with the same team for years and years, so I don't think it makes that much of a difference anymore."

After the visit of Wales tonight, Belgium travel to Holland to determine who wins Nations League Group A4.

Charles' promise

■ by DAVID ANDERSON

DION CHARLES claims he will repay Ian Baraclough with goals if he gives him his chance with Northern Ireland.

All Charles' 11 international appearances have been from the bench and the Bolton hitman is itching to make his first start in Saturday's Nations League game against Kosovo at Windsor Park.

He has scored four times in eight games for Bolton this season and has told Irish boss Baraclough he can help.

"I've had a conversation with Ian to let him know I feel I'm ready when called upon," said the former Accrington striker.

"I'm confident in my own ability. Every striker is paid their money to put the ball in the back of the net. For me, that's something I love."

"If I get my opportunity, I'm sure I will repay the manager."

Some fans want Baraclough out after top seeds Northern Ireland took only two points from their first four games and Charles says they are entitled to complain.

"If the performances aren't there on the pitch, they have every right to have a moan," he said.

Jordan fears for his family

From Back Page

England and Liverpool star insists his loved ones were left so shook up by the crowd trouble they are considering not going to the World Cup.

The revelation comes just 24 hours after Henderson's England team-mate Eric Dier admitted he had banned his own family from going to away games in the Premier League amid continuing abuse from fans.

The FA will fund the cost of taking extra security officers to Qatar to look after players' families.

But Henderson said: "I suppose as a fan, if you're going to the game and you don't feel comfortable, you're not going to want to go again. And it's as simple as that really."

"My family and friends have had a couple of experiences over the last couple of years which have really shocked them and probably put them off going to future games."

"Hopefully that changes in the near future when it gets closer to the tournament. But when you see scenes like you have in the Euros final and Champions League final, then they don't really want to go and put themselves in that situation."

"My dad said that after the Champions League final that was him done.

"When it gets closer to it, I think there's a lot of security elements and things that are going on in Qatar that I'm sure will make people more safe."

"But when you've had those experiences sometimes you think, 'Is it worth risking it?'"

FA chief executive Mark Bullingham (below) said: "I haven't spoken to the players about their concerns, but clearly everybody should feel that their families can come and support them and they should not feel threatened at any game."

"What we are doing in Qatar is that we have got extra security that we will pay for and will travel with the families. Qatar actually is a very safe country, if you look at all the metrics for street crime. We are not anticipating issues there."

"We are doing everything we can to improve behaviour and that has to form part of it."

Bullingham, meanwhile, has backed the Premier League's decision to hit fans who take part in anti-social or criminal behaviour with an automatic 12-month ban.

The bans will apply to both home and away games.

Band together

ENGLAND and the FA have broken their silence on the human rights record in Qatar – and vowed to help fight discrimination in the controversial state.

Harry Kane (inset) will join with captains of nine other European nations at the World Cup in wearing an armband with the message 'One Love' on it as an anti-discrimination gesture.

The FA have also vowed to lobby FIFA over new labour protection laws in a bid to help stop the abuse of migrant workers, calling for the families of those who have died or been injured during the build up to the World Cup to be compensated.

Wales captain Gareth Bale will join Kane in wearing the armband along with the skippers of Holland, Belgium, Denmark, France, Germany, Norway, Sweden and Switzerland.

Kane (inset) said: "I am honoured to join my fellow captains."

"We may compete against each other but we stand together against all forms of discrimination."

FA chief executive Mark Bullingham said: "I'll be very surprised if I don't see other countries join us."

Gareth anything but dull says cheerleader Jack

■ by JEREMY CROSS
JACK GREALISH has jumped to the defence of Gareth Southgate and insisted he is not a boring England boss.

Despite his success since taking charge in 2016, Southgate has been labelled with the tag of being 'too cautious'.

He was criticised for not going for the kill when England had Italy on the ropes in the 2020 Euro final and has been reluctant to bow to public pressure and start the likes of Grealish in more games.

Southgate will find his selection and tactics in the spotlight again tomorrow night when the Three Lions resume battle with the Italians in the Nations League in Milan.

England will then host Germany at Wembley on Monday in what will be their final game before heading to Qatar for the 2022 World Cup this winter.

Grealish is central to the debate about Southgate's approach but insists England have a manager who still knows what he's doing.

The Manchester City playmaker said: "No, I don't think he's too negative, especially if you're on about when he plays five at the back."

"People always go on about how good our wing-backs are and so I don't see why you wouldn't try that."

"I think we have great talent all over the pitch, whether that be at full-back, centre midfield or us wide players. I don't think he is too negative or cautious at all."

Grealish has told Southgate he is willing and able to help him in whatever role he wants him to play moving forward.

He said: "Listen, like I said earlier, every time I put on my shirt for my country I give it my all."

"I'd love to play every minute of every game but that will never happen with anyone."

"I just try and perform when I'm given the chance."

"When I'm on the training pitch, I'll train and try to give the manager no reason to leave me out. Hopefully that means that I can perform well and be on the plane to the World Cup."

Southgate is feeling serious heat for the first time as Three Lions boss following a woeful run in June of four games without a win.

The desperate performances culminated in a 4-0 thrashing by Hungary at Molineux, a result which saw some supporters call for him to be sacked.

It was Southgate's darkest hour since taking charge, but Grealish reckons those who turned on his manager were out of order.

He added: "It was harsh. We reached the Euros final and the last time we lost a game in 90 minutes before the first game of the last camp against Hungary was Belgium in November 2020."

"But sometimes that's what you get when you're English."

FLYING: Sessegnon

Ryan is back to his best

by GIDEON BROOKS

RYAN SESSEGNON is hoping he is finally over the injury problems that have stalled his career for both club and country.

The Spurs wing-back admits the last six years have been a "roller coaster" of early hype and setback.

But after a summer spent building his fitness to be ready to meet the demands of Antonio Conte, he is feeling in the form of his life.

And while experience has taught him to take nothing for granted, Sessegnon, 22, is feeling as optimistic about the future as he has in years.

He said: "Football is a roller coaster, there are a lot of ups and downs and you can be a 10 one day and a one the next. You have to stay level-headed."

"It's not been easy - I was doing well at Fulham and then hit by so many obstacles at Spurs."

"Now I'm coming through the other side. It's been hard work mentally and physically. I'm looking forward to the future."

Sessegnon will play for Lee Carsley's Under-21s against Italy in Pescara today and is ready to play the old hand as the squad look forward to next summer's European Championships.

But he admitted that under Conte he is stringing together his first extended run of top-class club form which has him dreaming of a senior call-up.

"I've been in this team a long time now - I'm probably one of the older guys here," he said.

"So I'll try and help the younger guys, talking to them and trying to set an example."

"Me getting in the senior team is a question you would have to ask Gareth Southgate. If the opportunity comes, then, I'll be delighted."

Sessegnon's improved physicality this season is in direct response to the demands placed on his squad by his Spurs boss.

"With this gaffer, even if we're doing tactical stuff, it's still physically hard," he said.

"It's hard but your body adapts. Then when you're on the pitch it benefits you."

THERE IS NO HEND IN SIGHT

by JEREMY CROSS

JORDAN HENDERSON will never give up on his World Cup dream.

And he admits he wants to still be pulling on an England shirt in the twilight of his career - if his nation needs him.

Most people think if he makes it to Qatar 2022 this winter at the age of 32 it will be his last shot at football's ultimate glory.

But the Liverpool captain is having none of it and admits he has sacrificed far too much in his life to ever consider calling time on his international career.

Henderson will be hoping to win his 70th cap when England face Italy in the Nations League in Milan tomorrow night and stake his claim for a place on the plane to his third World Cup.

Henderson remains as patriotic as ever and said: "Every call-up is a massive honour and achievement."

"I always want to come here and be part of the set-up as long as possible. I'm just delighted."

"As a kid my biggest dream was to play for England. That will never change and I want to do it as long as possible."

"I look at some players still playing internationals at 36 and 37. So it just depends on how you feel physically. I feel very good."

"I think last season I played more games than anyone else in Europe. So physically it's not an issue."

"I'm always excited about being called up. I want to be here and I want to show I can help the team become successful. Until that changes, there's no reason to even think about that (packing in)."

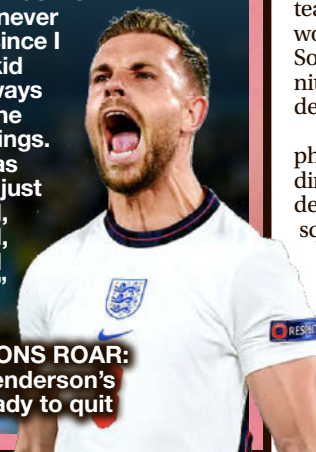

Henderson, who has recovered from a hamstring problem which ruled him out of the previous three weeks of the season, puts his longevity and fitness down to a life without alcohol.

He said: "Physically I feel like I'm in such a good spot. It's a reflection of how seriously I take the game off the pitch as well."

"I've never drank since I was a kid and always eaten the right things."

"It was always just football, football, football for me."

Grealish blasts pundit

From Back Page £100m deal in 2021. Grealish admits he can do better but is convinced the Liverpool legend is picking on him. He said: "I don't know what his problem is with me."

He always says stuff about me, but I try not to read a lot of it. "It is difficult when he's on Sky Sports and it's everywhere. "He was a great player but I don't know what it is with what he says about me, or what problem he's got. Nowadays, people have so much to say, whether that be on social media or pundits. "It's the biggest sport in the world and everyone wants to talk about it,
